Freelance Content Writer

Save time, stress, and worry by handing your writing projects over to a professional and competitively priced freelance writer – me.

Give me a goal for your business and I'll achieve it through pen and paper, pixel and screen. I can write on topics from a brief and to spec, conduct adequate research, or can generate my own ideas. I'm as well-versed in blog content, social media, and web copy, as I am in lengthier reports, email marketing, and even speeches.

“He is a hard-working and focused individual with excellent communication and presentation skills. His approach to work is exceptionally professional and creative.”

I have an MSc in Marketing, a BA (Hons.) in Film & TV Production and spent most of 2018-2019 running Merigo Films, a full-service video production company that worked with the likes of York Gin, The Artful Pour, York Dungeon, and York's Chocolate Story.

Film as a Political Medium: Propaganda and 'The Triumph of the Will'

Posted on February 28, 2017 by James Cullen

All political campaigns worth their salt feature a film to accompany them. We see it with Party Political Broadcasts in the UK and we've seen it with the US Presidential Elections. The films serve to boost the parties and their candidates, as well as sling some mud at their opponents. But political campaign films are nothing new. In fact, they went by another name back in the 1930s: propaganda. One of the most influential propaganda films is Leni Riefenstahl's 1935 picture The Triumph of the Will.

The Power of Dragvertising

By JAMES CULLEN 04 APR 2019

To many in the mainstream, the drag queen is a source of entertainment that comes from the fact that she is a man in a dress. Those involved in queer culture recognize the true value her exaggerated makeup and camp flair brings to LGBTQ visibility. She is the custodian of queer history and pop culture. And this has relegated her to her rightful place as the jewel in the glittering crown of LGBTQ counterculture.

Meet Chris Tavener: the satirical singer songwriter spoofing his way through the music scene

By James Cullen June 23, 2018
Music · Manchester

Fresh from a live album and DVD launch in Manchester, and the successful completion of a Rockeffers crowdfunding campaign (100% funded) to create a music video series based on current events, satirical singer-songwriter Chris Tavener has the world in his hands. And it's a world he hopes to change through his use of comedy and satire to tackle some of life's biggest challenges.

Where was the hatred towards The Jeremy Kyle Show when it was actually on?

19 May 2019 | James Cullen

Apparently, the news that The Jeremy Kyle Show has been cancelled indefinitely is not shocking to many. Apparently, the show has spent the past 15 years exploiting, demeaning, and humiliating those who should be given help by society. Following the death of a participant shortly after taping an episode of the show, the show itself has been denigrated, vilified, and attacked by dozens. Producers have stopped forwards citing how terrible the show is, audience members have reinforced these claims, and celebrities across the board have cited that the poverty porn that The Jeremy Kyle Show offers is but a digital Victorian freakshow.

Change of Heart: Why The Arts Can Be Viewed Negatively By Those Who Aren't Involved

As the saying goes 'All the world's a stage and all the men and women are merely players', but unfortunately, as you like it or not, not everybody wants to learn the script and stand in the spotlight. Shakespeare aside and instead invoking a quote from an equally influential source: when it comes to the arts you either love it or you hate it. But sadly for the arts, unlike Marmite, a lot of people decide they don't like it before they've even had a taste. Why is the arts derided sight unseen more so than any other facet of society, and how can this be remedied to allow the arts to become more inclusive to convert the disparaging masses to a life they didn't realise they were missing?

I have written commissioned articles for The Film Magazine, Evolve Politics, INTO, HuffPost, Metro, Backbench, East Street Arts, and The State of the Arts

Writing this commissioned piece for Metro allowed me to write more emotively with an introspective look at myself in the context of bigger social issues including dating and body image. LadBible's gaming piece on Pokémon looked at wider society in relation to the game.

Could pop-up work holidays improve #employee wellbeing?

Pop-up work holidays are extra self-care days off that aim to alleviate burnout and help employees de-stress.

Given that 17.9 million working days were lost to work-related stress, depression, or anxiety in 2019/20, adding extra paid days off could reduce this figure, improve productivity, and lead to employees improving their #worklifebalance and being happier in their jobs.

Dosh CEO Ryan Wuerch began giving spontaneous Fridays off to employees in November 2020, known as 'Dosh Days', announcing in a meeting on a Thursday that the following day would involve no work!

It's not all sun and sport - what issues are employers set to face this summer? 🌞

Return to Work: Many employees will be returning to work this summer. Employers should ensure their teams understand what re-engaging with the workplace will look like, and outline each stage of a return to work, in whatever capacity this may be. Many organisations are implementing a #WFH/office hybrid.

Dress Code Changes: We've only just adopted #hybridworking but it seems traditional working structures are changing again - many are ditching the dress code. To combat temperatures and juggle hybrid workers, many organisations are implementing a casual dress code.

End of Furlough: With the furlough scheme being phased out from July 1st, some employees will be returning to work after a long absence, and may need support as they readjust to new workplace norms. Open communication will be key as people settle back into the weekly routine.

At Circles UK & Ireland, our Re-Engage service supports organisations as their employees return to work, helping to manage expectations and outlining what a return looks like for all.

Get in touch to find out how we can support your organisation with the return to work and the navigation of new ways of working.

MERIGO FILMS LAUNCHES IN LEEDS – ALUMNI STORIES, JAMES CULLEN AND JORDAN MALTHOUSE

Start-Up Rebrand In Anticipation Of Channel 4 Move

Meet James Cullen & Jordan Malthouse of Merigo Films

We may not be in Hollywood, but a new video-production company – headed up by two former graduates of York St John University – is already making waves in Yorkshire, having worked with some of York and the wider region's best-loved brands.

Here, James Cullen and Jordan Malthouse of Merigo Films tell us more about their new small video production company and their passion for working with local small to medium food and drink businesses.

FILM DUO GOES FROM SPOONS TO SPOOLS

Wetherspoon's pubs across Leeds have provided the refreshment, as well as inspiration, for a new video production start-up business based in the city.

Creative director James Cullen and business partner Jordan Malthouse (head of production), both 25, met at York St John University, while studying for a film and television degree.

Seven years on, the pair launched Rhubarb & Rushes on the 130th anniversary of the first-ever film made – also in Leeds.

So far specialising in corporate videography, producing branded short films, they hope to add more fiction and documentary film to their portfolio.

James, pictured (right) with Jordan at The Hedley Verity, explained: "We spent the final six months (multiple days a week), before we launched working on the business, in various Wetherspoon pubs across Leeds.

"We came up with the business name in 'Spoons, thanks to Shells Bank Rhubarb cider: we gained our first client in 'Spoons and have been editing finished films in the pubs since we incorporated.

"Our business has been fuelled on the Chicken Club, toasted paninis, burgers and coffee refills, helped by the atmosphere and prices of Wetherspoon.

"Our favourite is Becketts Bank, with its lively atmosphere, which is just the best... a real vibrancy and a great place for Jordan and me to meet up and work."

14 Wetherspoon | Winter 2018/19 | jwetherspoon.com

One of my responsibilities for Merigo Films was to create PR opportunities. These included business-related publications, local Yorkshire titles, and more out-of-the-box publications such as Wetherspoon's News!

Articles for Digital PR – Business

My MSc in Marketing and the experience of running my own business means that the topic I most frequently fall back on is business. Whether I'm writing about ways to expand the brand, to gain and retain customers, or optimize social media, business is my forte.

Fiction

As well as writing for commercial purposes, I also write fiction.

I have written several short films, short stories, poems, and have completed three novels – one of which is currently being shopped round potential literary agents.

My main fiction writing passion is television – and I have pilot episodes and series outlines for four original 30-minute comedies and three original hour-long dramas.

Most recently, in May 2020 I entered the BBC Writersroom Comedy window and made my way to the longlist – top 11%.

I am a regular participant in National Novel Writing Month, a commitment every November with the aim of producing 50,000 words of a novel.

Prices

I believe in pricing on a project-by-project basis.

A 10,000-word thesis on my life until this point would be considerably easier to write than a 1,000-word blog on the military industrial complex as it pertains to the Ukraine economy during the 1980s. So, the prices of each would vary.

However, I am flexible and open to discussing how we can work together. For nice, honest businesses or brands I am passionate about, I would prioritize interesting and varied work over an arbitrary fee.

Please feel free to get in touch to discuss how I could help you with your copywriting, social media, or marketing goals.
